President Appoints New Presidential Security Advisor

12. (U) On 10/10, President Duarte announced and signed a decree appointing former Attorney General Oscar German Latorre as the new presidential security advisor. Latorre will have the rank and privileges of a cabinet minister. This newly created executive office will advise the President on national security matters. Latorre's new responsibilities will include evaluation and proposal of policies and legislative reforms to combat crimes such as drug trafficking, money laundering, and kidnapping, among other crimes. Reports indicate that Latorre's first domestic proposal will be a gun control bill. It is not clear at this time what the budget of this office will be and how this office will be staffed but, Latorre is expected to request security agents from other agencies to be assigned to his office. As more information becomes available Post will report further on this issue in septel. NOTE: Recently, Latorre was rumored to be President Duarte's designee to head on intelligence affairs by virtue of a decree. The ensuing controversy and the creation of intelligence office prompted Duarte to suspend its creation by decree and explore instead enabling legislation. To our knowledge such legislation has yet been submitted to Congress. END NOTE.

SENAD Capture Peruvian Cocaine Trafficker in Asuncion

3.(U) On 10/11, SENAD agents arrested 5 Peruvian citizens for drug trafficking. Three were captured at a SENAD station located in the Chaco region and 2 at the central bus terminal in Asuncion. According to reports, the five men swallowed approximately 224 capsules filled with cocaine. Apparently the Peruvians swallowed the capsules in Peru. Their final destination was Asuncion where they expected their payment. SENAD agents have indicated that they are expecting to make more arrests in the case.

Foot and Mouth Outbreak in Brazil Triggers Response

4.(U) On 10/10, Paraguay's animal health services, SENACSA, released a "Sanitary Alert Plan" to control the spread of Foot and Mouth disease (FMD), which was recently discovered on a cattle ranch in the neighboring southern Brazilian province of Matto Grosso do Sul, approximately 45 kilometers from the border with Paraguay. SENACSA is presently enforcing a 30 kilometer alert zone along Paraguay's border with Brazil, from the district of Pedro Juan Caballero in the Department of Amambay to Ciudad del Este in the Department of Alto Parana. According to SENACSA's alert plan, authorities are controlling the entry of all species susceptible to FMD, and are requiring mandatory disinfection of all vehicles entering the alert zone from Brazil. They are also issuing veterinary teams to increase monitoring of cattle ranches in the area.
